I love you without knowing how, or when, or from where.
I love you straightforwardly, without complexities or pride; so I love you because I know no other way than this,
where I does not exist nor you, so close that your hand
on my chest is my hand, so close that your eyes close as I fall asleep.

Though love adds an infinitude to life, though it brims over everywhere on everything, it too makes one want more than enough, more than is possible or conceivable. To love someone because they are beautiful or kind or generous or smart is an affront to love. 100 Love Sonnets, book, 2014; College Station, Texas. what is "intelligence" or "ambition"?), love is a slave, rather, to it's gesturary. What if they go away and they stop loving you? And when you are with that person you love, it is not the party which you were waiting for, it seems like you are living in the house and it is some anonymous Sunday morning (you drinking your coffee, them reading the paper, feeding the cat), and everything is calm and quiet. For me I love all at once, I fall very fast, but rarely. Want more? And my favorite from Neruda, maybe my favorite-ever love poem. "If you forget me" I return to often, maybe every time I feel that pang of love. To me this is what it is to be in love. Your mind is again aflutter with worries and anxieties, and when it is about to give up, it is re-nourished by a fleeting memory of their smile, or a kind word, or an unexpected message. When the brain and the heart are in discord, when one lies to oneself about what they want, what they love, what they need.Like in Roland Barthes' Lover's Discourse, I am moved by Neruda's understanding that to love is also to wait. For one feels in love that before love their life was an empty house, unlivable. It's Neruda's best-known work, and has sold more than 20 million copies. ...more I love you as the plant that doesn't carry but carries the light of those flowers, hidden, within itself. and thanks to your love the tight aroma that arose from the earth lives dimly in my body. While love adds to everything, it is a constant threat of losing everything, and having to build up from the ruins alone. It is a poor imitation to describe love, language is an ill-fitted coat for it, it hangs loose and leaves unfitting folds. I am battered on all sides, forced always to maneuver at the helm and can think of nothing else, whatever. Book 1: 100 Love Sonnets is a collection of one hundred sonnets written by Chilean poet Pablo Neruda and was published first in 1959 in Spanish. Death, love, grief, loss, these things are common material, for what truths can ever be said in language about them? I love you without knowing how, or when, or from where, I love you simply, without problems or pride: I love you in this way because I don't know any other way of loving. Skip to main content CLICK FOR A NEW POEM Translated by Mark Eisner I don't love you as if you were a rose of salt, topaz, or arrow of carnations that propagate fire: I love you as one loves certain obscure things, secretly, between the shadow and the soul. I love you without knowing how, or when, or from where, I love you directly without problems or pride: I love you like this because I don't know any other way to love, except in this form in which I am not nor are you, so close that your hand upon my chest is mine, so close that your eyes close with my dreams. But there are a few which feel infinite to me, which burn in me like my own loves. Instead, our system considers things like how recent a review is and if the reviewer bought the item on Amazon. You are reading a free visualization page 3 is not shown in this view. Neruda knows and writes in her sonnets of love, that love is a pain. It is that everything becomes a messenger, a sign, a whisper of love, to the ugly and insignificant things, little and litted things, and also great things that shake it, everything becomes a small boat that takes you in a flash for this feeling of longing, love, that person you love that is absent. We all feel them every day, but the words decrease them. But when they leave, it is in a hurry in the heart to make them stay. Your whole body will make them stay forever, to maintain them prisoners. But I think it can be better to be angry than ever to feel this madness, always love in a level avenue. What I love in poetry is that it is always, when well done, an attempt to say what can never be said. But always the windows hurt, and inside the boiler cries. And they kept him, washed the windows and cleared the gutters and kept the fresh chipping paint, but inside it was always empty, perhaps just filled the corners, but subtle things in the shadows. But poetry, though not everything, comes close to representing love. I'm crazy with love, always. I will spend long people without love throughout my life, happy and thoughtless that passions I am losing, without several paired people, such as a new bright boat in the sea that are not thinking about the entire port. Harbor.
